

Bosman Hermanus

Bosman Hermanus, nestled in the upper Hemel-en-Aarde Valley near Hermanus, offers an extraordinary opportunity for visitors to connect with nature. Explore the pristine farmland, fynbos, and Renosterveld through the unique Koppie & Wetlands trails, thoughtfully laid out by renowned conservationist Frank Woodvine. The estate opens two self-guided trails to the public, and a field guide is readily available to enhance your experience.

What sets Bosman Hermanus apart is its unwavering commitment to ecological restoration and conservation. Vast uncultivated lands on the farm are undergoing rehabilitation, serving as a sanctuary for a diverse array of rare fynbos, Renosterveld, small indigenous Afromontane Forest, numerous bird species, and even the elusive grey rhebok. This dedication to preserving and nurturing the natural world reflects Bosman Hermanus' deep respect for the environment and its role in enhancing the visitor experience.
