Belmont Mount Neslon Hotel

Nestled at the base of Table Mountain, Cape Town's renowned Belmont Mount Nelson Hotel stands as an iconic landmark committed to environmental responsibility. Throughout the establishment, environmentally conscious practices are meticulously implemented to minimize their ecological footprint.

In the bar, for instance, the hotel has replaced plastic straws with eco-friendly paper alternatives. Moreover, guests have the unique opportunity to engage in sustainable activities like handpicking vegetables from the Moya we Khaya community food garden. These freshly harvested vegetables can then be transformed into a customized salad as part of the Township Farm Tour, illustrating a commitment to local community engagement.

Within the hotel's kitchen, a dedicated waste initiative ensures that all parts of ingredients are thoughtfully utilized, effectively reducing unnecessary waste and promoting sustainable culinary practices.
